Who is Your Multicultural Superhero? #MulticulturalSuperHero

Related to the topic of healthy relationships is the idea of multicultural superheroes – those people and groups we look up to as role models in promoting multicultural values (Respect for Diversity, Recognition and Rejection of Racism, Intercultural Connections to build bridges between cultures and Integration of immigrants and newcomers).

Multicultural Superheroes can include any person or group of people, real or fictitious, who inspires you with their super powers of respect and inclusion. A Multicultural Superhero is someone who:

- Protects and celebrates all cultures
- Proudly embraces and shares traditions
- Battles “Villains” such as racism, bullying and discrimination (sexual orientation, age, ability & gender, etc.) between individuals, groups or in institutions.
- Leaps tall barriers to build bridges for intercultural connections
- Activates a power magnet to draw diverse people together for creative innovation
- Demonstrates super vision and strength to achieve equality and equity for all

Examples of Multicultural Superheroes could be leaders of all types: Organizations, Movements, Individuals (Family Members; Friends; Politicians; Activists; Famous People; Comic book, TV, Movie and Book Characters; Authors; Artists; Athletes; etc.): Amnesty International, Idle No More, Your Mom, Your boss, a Teacher, Louis Riel, Nelson Mandela, Rosemary Brown, Maria Linklater, Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., Peggy McIntosh, Harriet Tubman, Elijah Harper, Rosalie Abella, Kamala Khan, Black Panther, Maya Angelou, Jackie Robinson, Zarqa Nawaz, Arundhati Roy, David Suzuki, and so on.

Celebrate Saskatchewan Multicultural Week November 19 – 27, 2016

An important aspect of fostering healthy and respectful relationships is embracing diversity in all its forms. When we focus on creating welcoming and inclusive communities everyone benefits.

Saskatchewan Multicultural Week is celebrated each November during the week that includes November 22nd. It recognizes the Saskatchewan Multiculturalism Act and celebrates the cultural diversity and contributions to multiculturalism in Saskatchewan. This is a key way we can nurture healthy intercultural relationships.

In 1974, Saskatchewan was the first province to enact multiculturalism legislation, recognizing the right of every community to retain its identity, language and traditional arts and sciences for the mutual benefit of citizens. In 1997, the Act was revised and a section of the Act states the policy should preserve, strengthen and promote Aboriginal cultures and acknowledge their historic and current contribution to development of Saskatchewan. Responsibility for the Act resides with the Ministry of Parks, Culture and Sport.

The Multicultural Council of Saskatchewan (MCoS) was founded on November 22, 1975 and has been instrumental in the development and promotion of multicultural values, including Saskatchewan’s motto From Many Peoples Strength.

Each year, MCoS runs a public education campaign related to Saskatchewan Multicultural Week. Learn about this year’s campaign, Who is Your Multicultural Superhero? in the next section.
